Gov. John Waihee, wearing a traditional Japanese headband, receives a resolution from Cherry Blossom Festival Queen Marlene Sato at his yakudoshi, or 41st birthday party. The Japanese characters spell out Waihee's name. About 1,100 people attended the $40-a-plate affair, which was a benefit for the Ellison Onizuka memorial museum at Keahole Airport on the Big Island. At the event, sponsored by the Honolulu Japanese Chamber of Commerce, Claude Onizuka, the astronaut's brother, announced at the event last night that the Hawaiian flag Ellison took on his last flight has been recovered and will be returned to Hawaii soon.
